HELPDESK

WHAT IS OKAY? aka, how can I treat everyone respectfully?

Dancing is about fun, but also about consent. Communicate with your partner and ensure you are both feeling comfortable and safe. That also relates to aeriels and dips.

Be good people: do not use discriminating behavior, for example misogynist, homophobic, transphobic, ableist, or racist language. Ask for verbal consent: "Would you like to dance?" "Would you like a drink?"

Even if you've been given consent before, ask every time. Use your words.

Respect the bodies and persons of other people: do not touch anyone without asking permission, do not touch anyone inappropriately, and stop if someone asks you to. Do not harass or pester someone who has already said no to a dance. If someone lets you know, verbally or non-verbally, that they are feeling uncomfortable, address your behavior, apologize sincerely, and make a change immediately.

If you need emergency assistance, crisis hotlines such as the below are also available to you.
